DETAILED ACTION

This application is a continuation of 10/038,093, filed on January 4, 2002, now U.S. Patent 6,628,886.

Drawings

1. The drawings, filed on 02/25/2002, are accepted.

Specification

2. Applicants' cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicants may become aware in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-8, 10, 11, 13-17 and 19-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Skunes et al. (U.S. 2002/0062170).

Regarding claims 1, 10 and 19, Skunes et al. disclose (see Figures 1-3) a method and an apparatus for transporting one or more optical components between a plurality of optical component processing stages of an assembly system, comprising a carrier transport apparatus adapted to move at least one optical component carrier between two optical component processing stages and position the optical component carrier between a plurality of a processing positions with respect to each of the two optical component stages (abstract; [0019], lines 6-9 and [0026], lines 15-24).

Regarding claims 2, 10, 11, 19 and 20, Skunes et al. disclose an apparatus wherein the carrier transport (pick and place machine) comprises a roller assembly driven by a conveyor drive ([0013], lines 1-5 and [0021], lines 5-8).

Regarding claim 3, Skunes et al. disclose an apparatus wherein the carrier transport comprises a positioning apparatus to move and support the at least one optical component carrier between a plurality of processing positions with respect to the at least one optical component processing stage ([0015], lines 12-22).

Regarding claims 4, 13 and 21, Skunes et al. disclose an apparatus wherein the positioning apparatus comprises a pedestal (pick machine) adapted to lift and support the one optical component carrier.

Regarding claims 5, 14 and 22, Skunes et al. disclose an apparatus wherein the pedestal is adapted to move the optical component carrier in three dimensions with respect to the optical component processing stage ([0019], lines 6-13).

Regarding claims 6, 7 and 15-17, Skunes et al. disclose an apparatus wherein the positioning apparatus comprises an indexing transport apparatus to move the optical component carrier in a sequential index motion with respect to the at least one optical component processing stage ([0013], lines 1-5).

Regarding claim 8, Skunes et al. disclose an apparatus wherein the indexing transport apparatus comprises one indexing stop (110, 112, Figure 1) to stop and position the optical component carrier in a plurality of indexed processing positions (abstract, lines 5-8).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Art Unit: 2874

7. Claim 23 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Skunes et al. as cited above.

Skunes et al. disclose an optical device with all the limitations set forth in the claims as discussed above, except the optical component carrier is moved at least one incremental distance as recited in claim 23. However, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to move the optical component carrier at least one incremental distance, since it has been held that discovering an optimum value of a result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980).

Allowable Subject Matter

8. Claims 9, 12 and 18 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 24-33 are allowed.

The prior art fails to disclose or reasonably suggest an apparatus for transporting one or more optical components between a plurality of optical component processing stages of an assembly system, wherein the indexing transport apparatus includes a carrier support member having a cam apparatus and shaft member; and further wherein the plurality of rollers are rotatably mounted to a frame and aligned along a longitudinal axis about orthogonal to the travel of the optical component carrier.

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Bergmann (U.S. Patent 5,703,992) discloses an optical package for optical components. And Yeo et al. (U.S. Patent 6,617,667) disclose an optical device carrier.

10. The prior art documents submitted by applicant in the Information Disclosure Statement filed on 02/25/2003, have all been considered and made of record (note the attached copy of form PTO-1449).
